

Marcia Ditmyer, Ph.D.

Marcia Ditmyer is dean of the College for Health and Human Services at Saginaw Valley University (SVSU) in Saginaw, Michigan. She came to SVSU after serving as the associate dean for education and professor in residence with Emerita at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas (UNLV), School of Dental Medicine, where she provided leadership and assumed oversight for all educational programs and learning environments within the school.

Dr. Ditmyer also served as vice president of the Academy for Advancing Leadership (AAL) from 2014 to 2016 and has remained as a senior consultant since 2016. In this role, she developed and conducted customized leadership and professional development training programs, provided institutional effectiveness and accreditation guidance, and implemented workforce and feasibility planning studies. As a Michigan native, Ditmyer received an MBA from Central Michigan University, an MS from California College for Health Sciences, and a PhD from the University of Toledo.